THE RIGDON-YOUNG SHOOTING.

The Rigdon-Young shooting case developed sensational twists and angles in Chicago yesterday. A serious question has arisen in the minds of the police whether Charles W. Rigdon really committed suicide and attempted the murder of Mrs. Amy Young, alias Mrs. Emma Deufex, with whom he has been intimate for years. This doubt is based upon the conflicting stories of the tragedy told by Mrs. Young and her half-sister, Teresa Tronmme, and the contradictory statements made at various times by John C. Fetzner, the millionaire promoter, in whose office the tragedy occurred. The police have secured half a dozen love letters which Mrs. Young had written Rigdon within the last month and a lengthy epistle in which she reviewed the four troubled years of their intimacy and the causes of the final break. Mrs. Young's husband, from whom she had lived apart for some years, was, it is now believed, Alexander C. Young, a lawyer, of Hoboken, N. J.

It has been learned that Charles W. Rigdon was a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. Emma Young when the latter lived in a fashionable section of Washington, a little more than a year ago. Mrs. Young was known then as Mrs. Aimee Young. After living in Washington for about three months Mrs. Young suddenly disappeared after an exciting episode in which Rigdon figured. Rigdon arrived at the home one night, it is alleged, and found the place dark. There was no response to his repeated rings, and, exasperated, he smashed all the windows within reach with his cane. Rigdon disappeared before the police arrived. Soon afterwards Mrs. Young abandoned the house, leaving her furniture. Rigdon and Mrs. Young are alleged to have figured in another exciting incident in Washington. One night he was walking along the street with Mrs. Young, when they met a negro whom Rigdon thought insulted Mrs. Young. He drew a revolver and shot the negro. The latter was not badly hurt. Rigdon was not arrested.

TRUANT WIFE STRANGLED.

After he had revived from a fainting spell due to the shock of seeing the body with its discolored features, M. S. Hettrich, a wealthy business man of Piermont, Orange county, N. Y., identified in the Brooklyn morgue yesterday a woman found strangled to death in Brooklyn, as his wife, Mary, who left him and his two children three months ago and disappeared with $10,000 in cash.

Hettrich, when he first saw his wife's body, threw up his hands, exclaiming, "My God, it's she!" and then fell to the floor in a faint. "She was my wife," he explained, on regaining his senses. "She left our two children and me mysteriously. Why she went away we never knew, and perhaps never will. Oh, my poor children!" cried the heartbroken husband. "They cried for their mother and have been inconsolable ever since."

Mrs. Hettrich was found murdered in her room. She had evidently been killed only after a desperate struggle for life. A chair was overturned, a bottle broken, perhaps on her skull, a table knocked out of place, her hair disheveled and her clothing torn.

She lay on the floor with the impression of fingers deep in her neck. The murderer had evidently got a firm grip on her throat and strangled her.

Nothing was found in the room to indicate the identity of the woman. She was good looking and wore expensive clothing. She was known to the landlady as Mary Hettrich and also as Mary Selkner.

Detectives arrested Speis Tarlimanaker, a Greek fruit dealer. He lives in Brooklyn. He said he called to see the woman Monday night. She was then lying across the bed fully dressed and apparently asleep. He did not wish to wake her, he said, and left. He is being held as a material witness.

SPANKED HIS SON-IN-LAW.

Because his son-in-law, Michael J. Francis, aged 30 years, was not in the house by 7 o'clock Tuesday night, as instructed, coming at 8:30 instead, John Horan, of Pittsburgh, Pa., gave Michael a beating, it is alleged, and sent him to bed without his supper.

Mrs. Francis, who had been calling on a neighbor, arrived at nine o'clock, and hearing what had happened to her husband started a row, in which the husband joined, with the result that yesterday morning both Francis and Horan were prisoners in the police station—each with beautifully marked faces, for under direction of his young wife Francis had put up a nice fight the second time.

The police magistrate discharged both, telling Horan to give his big son-in-law more latitude in the future. Horan protested against interference in his family affairs by the police magistrate and got a rather cold reception from the court.

SUMMER PRICES

ANTHRACITE COAL

Our 1910 summer prices on Anthracite Coal became effective Monday, May 1, 1910.

There has never been a time in the history of our business when we felt that we were able to give better values in Anthracite Coal than we can this season, as we have completed our arrangements to secure our entire supply from two or three of the very best collieries in the Anthracite region, and will have a coal which is uniform in quality, well prepared, and coal that will give far better results than the average.

It is our desire to give our trade the best values that can be had, and we earnestly solicit the orders of our friends and customers.
